Site Updates

Hair Loss forums for Men and Women now showing over 70 new posts per day. Despite meager beginnings, the Discussion Forums here on HairlossTalk are showing record activity and attendance...

First off, we want to thank our users for their patience while for nearly a year, HLT was inactive on the front end, building features on the back end for release this year. Your participation in this community is what keeps it alive, and as everyone's favorite musician, Bryan Adams (ha!) says: "Everything we do, we do it for you"...

We are happy to announce that our Discussion Forums were seeing over 110 new posts per day last week, nearly double the activity of the previous forums.

We are currently averaging nearly 70+ posts daily with over 650 registered users.

Throwing you Off Guard

Back in May with the redesign of the site, we also released new Forum software which sent quite a few of our users reeling in confusion and frustration. An immense amount of research was put into which software to use, and the decision was made that this was the best available today, so we stuck with it. Despite a very slow start however, it is back in full swing, and increasing in usage daily.

Making it Easy for You

Our users wanted one thing on the new forums, and we spent a pretty penny to have it created, but its absolutely the most useful feature out there: In the upper lefthand corner of the screen you will see a Forum Toolbar with a dropdown menu. Simply select the timeframe you'd like.

Instantly, you will be presented with a complete cross-section of all the most recent posts in the time frame you selected. You can choose the last 24 hours, last week, last month, etc. Not only this, but you're able to see a summary of what each user said, so you can determine whether you want to bother looking further.

Finding the active threads and the latest comments since your last visit is very useful, and we encourage you to make it your first step each and every time you visit the forums!

Once again, we thank everyone for their patience over the past year. HairlossTalk is back online and thriving, thanks to you.
